Kafui Y. Doe, MPH, CHES

E-mail: communications@mwpha.org

Kafui Y. Doe moved to the Washington DC area in 2007 to pursue her MPH in Health Promotion and a Certificate in Public Health Communication and Marketing at George Washington University School of Public Health and Health Services.

During her time in the Washington DC area, Kafui has served as 2008-09 President and Co-Founder of the Black Public Health Student Network at GW, co-authored the Youth Sexual Health Project with the Committee on Health at the Council of District of Columbia, volunteered as a tutor at Anacostia High School, and interned at Metro TeenAIDS. Within MWPHA, Kafui has worked with other students on MWPHA's "Save Lives: Free the Condoms" campaign, participated in several Health Disparities Committee activities, and currently serves as a Governing Council member and Communications Chair for the organization.

Kafui received her Bachelors of Arts from the University of California, Berkeley in 2006. During her undergraduate experience, Kafui served in various leadership roles within organizations such as UC Berkeley's Health Worker Program, the Black Engineering and Science Student Association, and Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. Kappa Chapter. Kafui mentored and facilitated youth focused programs such the Health Professional Partnership Initiative of Oakland, Dr. Betty Shabazz Delta Academy, and Stiles Hall's Le Conte Elementary and Thousands Oaks Elementary tutoring programs.

Kafui's passion lies in addressing health disparities among children, adolescents, and young adults through new and innovative approaches.
